ABSTRACT

Over 500 books, films, sound recordings, and other resource materials about women are listed in this annotated bibliography. Although some entries were published as early as the 1700's, most of the materials were produced in the 1970's and 1980's. Representing a wide range of women-related topics, the materials focus primarily on women's history and women's rights. Although the bibliography is targeted specifically to resources available in the Anchorage (Alaska) School District, each bibliographic citation includes author, publisher, and date of publication to assist users in other locations; many entries include brief annotations. Additional reference sources for women's studies and a list of films precede extensive subject and biographic indexes. (LH)

WOMEN: A BIBLIOGRAPHY OF RESOURCES IN THE ANCHORAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT

LIBRARY RESOURCES
DIVISION OF COMMUNICATIONS AND MEDIA
ANCHORAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT
January 1984

Acknowledgements

Personnel of Library Resources prepared this bibliography with the administrative support of Dr. Marilynn S. Scott, Assistant Superintendent of Communications and Media, and with encouragement from Carol Waters, School Psychologist, who has a special interest in the history of women. Special thanks is extended to Nancy Wrocklage, Library Resources, who carefully monitored the preparation of this manuscript. Several student aids assisted by searching bibliographic records and typing the contents on a microcomputer. Appreciation is also extended to Sylvia Fink for authoring the chapter on "Effectively obtaining resources."

Manager, Library Resources

PREFACE

You have in your hands the seed for learning - about women and accomplishment, about struggle and oppression, about courage and caring.

Until recently the focus of history gathering has been unchallanged. Reports of war, politics, sports, all achievements - these were all accepted as representative of all. But fifty per-cent of the population was frequently overlooked and undervalued - the women. The result was a widespread perception of women as passive non-participants in the events of the world.

Now, with this compilation of women's resources, you can change that. You will find materials to stir your own consciousness and to raise the awareness level of your students through a variety of media.

Recognize, however, that these materials have not been evaluated for bias. They were sorted by subject. But even biased materials can be excellent teaching tools - if you pinpoint the biases and teach your students to recognize the biases. They can grow from such an experience.

This compilation is just the beginning. There is a plan to review these materials. You can be a part of this by completing an evaluation form for materials when you use the resources listed here.

The Women's Resource Bibliography developed out of a need - a need to focus more fully upon the roles and contributions of women. I applaud the efforts of Ruth Jean Shaw and Sylvia Fink and their co-workers, and the support of Marilynn Scott to help begin the germination of this seed.

EFFECTIVELY OBTAINING RESOURCES

by

Sylvia Fink

This section lists several useful resources for identifying or retrieving material contained in the Anchorage School District. Users within the District should contact a school building level librarian for any intra-District loan requirements. You may also obtain resources by contacting Library Resources (279-2409) or your Public, University or Special librarians to arrange for interlibrary loan requests.

Because the school district collection is continually expanding, you may find you require a resource that is not listed in this bibliography. It is impossible to provide an exhaustive current list. You can, however, by contacting your librarian have access to other tools and methods to locate additional resources in the area, state or even the northwest region of the country.

I. Within the ANCHORAGE SCHOOL DISTRICT:

A. The ROM (read-only-memory) Machines in the District media centers are the new format of the card catalog. Unlike old type card catalogs, the ROM machines list all locations for each resource added to the catalog since 1982. It is updated by the Alaska Library Network COM Catalog, the WLN Resource Directory or by direct access to the WLN database via computer.

B. The Anchorage School District Instructional Media Catalog lists AV materials available through the Audio-Visual Center. Over one thousand entries are listed in the Anchorage School District ROM Catalog.

C. The Anchorage School District Periodical List 1983/84 has the District's magazine titles. This is available in all media centers in paper format. Holdings details are updated in The Alaska Union List of Serials COM Catalog which is in microfiche format.

D. "Dial-up access" is the capability to access a database via a terminal and a modem. This permits transfer of messages on a telephone line. This capability will be available on a pilot basis at secondary schools in the near future. Dial-up access provides up-to-the-minute knowledge of District holdings in the Washington Library Network. WLN is a computerised catalog of the holdings in ninety-eight libraries of the Pacific Northwest.

E. Computer-assisted instruction: a bibliography of programs in the Anchorage School District is a publication which lists the software programs owned by the District. It is available in paper format at all media centers and copies can be obtained from Library Resources.

F. Library Resources is the center for library automation and technical processing of materials housed in District libraries. It has multiple points of access to both District and non-District resources. Microfiche reader/printers and computer on-line printers enable users to extract print-outs of citations. Call 279-2409 if you have questions.

II. For materials in ALASKAN LOCATIONS:

A. Alaska Library Network COM (computer-output-microform) Catalog is a microfiche format catalog showing titles owned by participating libraries in the state of Alaska. It includes the Anchorage School District titles. It is issued in January of each year and is distributed to all libraries in the state.

B. Alaska Union List of Serials COM Catalog, also on microfiche, lists holdings of magazines and annual publications from every participating Alaskan library. It is issued quarterly and can be found in all school libraries.

C. Alaska Newspaper COM Index, also on microfiche, comes out monthly with about a two month time lag. Like the previous two items, it is distributed by the State Library to most libraries in Alaska.

D. State Library Film/Video COM Catalog is yet another microfiche product listing audio-visual materials available in Alaska.

III. For materials NOT IN ALASKA:

A. WLN Resources Directory is the microfiche COM (computer-output-microform) product of the Washington Library Network (available at Library Resources). It shows titles and library location codes for resources in libraries of the Pacific northwest and western Canada that belong to WLN. See your librarian for interlibrary loan or photocopy requests.

B. Washington Library Network terminals connected to a main-frame computer (which contains the most current data on holdings) are located in several participating libraries. Use is restricted to library personnel trained in WLN terminology and search strategies. If there is an immediate need to locate a specific item, your librarian can probably arrange a terminal search for you.

C. "Dialog" is a computerized search service which accesses over 170 computerized indexes such as ERIC, Sociology Abstracts, Disseration Abstracts, Economic Index, etc. Check with your librarian for information on availability and cost of this commercial service.
